

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A machine for performing medical analysis of samples includes individual modules movable relative to one another, having openings in side walls thereof, and conveyors for moving the samples through the openings between the modules. Robotic arms in the modules are used to grip and move the samples between shelves and the conveyors.